

A Celebration of Northwest California's Conifers

Northwest California fosters one of the most diverse temperate coniferous forests on earth. As many as 38 species of conifers can be found here, depending on where one delineates the region's boundaries. Join Michael Kauffmann, a local science teacher and fellow plant nerd, for an evening of wilderness bliss – an exploration into the stunning conifer diversity fostered here.

A visual journey will ensue – with photographs from hidden nooks in the Klamath Mountains and North Coast –

we will take a peek at the isolated microclimates that hide conifers. Michael has also created range maps for the areas conifers, which will add to the evenings discussion.

January 14th, 2009

Kick off the new year with CNPS at the Six Rivers Masonic Lodge, 251 Bayside Road near 7th and Union.

Refreshments at 7 p.m. with the program starting at 7:30 p.m.

Please visit
www.northcoastcnps.org
for more information

www.conifercountry.com

